CSI: Crab Vegas

Crime scene done and dusted writes Neville Ives Puget

With square crab safely tucked away in jail, citizens of Crabtown were expecting a quiet and peaceful winter; residents were shocked to hear that the famous Crabtown Cookie Parlour had been robbed overnight.

“53 pies. That's as much as five tens plus three! HORRIBLE!”

An eye witness

With Greg out of town for the Annual Policecrab Conference, citizens of Crabtown took the case into their own claws, donning investigation kits and hazmat suits. A floury haze filled the afternoon air as Crabtown residents carefully located, dusted and analysed fingerprints left at the scene of the crime. A witness to the scene commented, “It was quite thrilling to be there to experience this record breaking event. To be able to eat 53 pies in 50 seconds is an amazing feat. Oh the investigation? It's going pretty well I gu- LOOK AT THIS GUY EAT!”. The amateur investigators were able to conclude that the fingerprints were not of crab origin, advising residents keep a watch out for suspicious characters. Unrelated to the case, a break in has been reported at the local police station, with hundreds of dollars worth of equipment missing. A few crabs have also been reprimanded over pie-related gambling.

Crabtown Film Festival ends with a bang

Krabby E. Kaiser reports

The Crabtown Short Film Competition was a big success, attracting a record breaking turn out in both entries and audience numbers. Amongst our line up were a joint effort from Crabtown's very own Ed and Greg, with their explosive short “Crabtown Racing”. Kita showed us the true meaning of hard work in her short “Pineapple climbing up da tree”, keeping our audience members at the edge of their seats until the very last second! The winners of the day, however, stole the show with their comedic short “The Abduction”, featuring a heartwarming tale between a pig and a cow. Stay tuned for a surprise twist at the end! The winners have won a 7 day trip to Christmas Island, sponsored by Krab Corp! EDIT: We have been informed that due to complications with the plane, the winners were instead offered a tour of crabtown's expansive and extravagant sewers, which they politely declined.

Crabtown sanitation protocols stink

Horrifying discoveries panics town reports Stan Lee
Yelnats Lee Stan

Residents of Crabtown were awoken today with a disgusting stench, notified when a distressed Nippy ran into the streets yelling incomprehensibly, before going back to sleep. After many hours of near-fruitless searching, encounters with the local fauna, among them the canis rancens giganticus and head butting, residents managed to find the source of the unexplained smell.

Several crab bodies were found underneath a hastily placed pile of rubble. The bodies were found to have been violently dismembered, burns present suggesting the victims were killed in an explosion. More disturbingly, the pile of 'rubble' consisted of eviscerated apples and carrots, and that many of the victim's remains had been boiled and gnawed on, the teeth marks on the bodies consistent with crab bites.

Residents were distraught to find this gruesome discovery, going so far as to recognise one of the corpses as Pooey, the winner of last year's crabtown races. The phrase, "Poor Pooey" and #RememberTheRaces is now among the most trending in social media in the area. Most disturbingly however, the presence of the apple and carrot remains suggests the presence of the dreaded lepus stercore giganticus, an animal which has not been seen for the past several centuries and resulted in a massacre of the town's previous inhabitants hundreds of years ago. With the re-emergence of the Lepus stercore giganticus, and the discovery of the bodies and shocking presence of cannibalism, the normally idyllic town is now in uproar. Witchhunts for the perpetrator/s have now commenced, with some going so far as to sell pitchforks, torches and other paraphernalia to the angry mobs. Officer Greg calls for calm in the midst of this dark time, and to say indoors as much as possible while the culprit is found.
